

Environmental Justice Fact Sheet--Small Grants

Purpose

The Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Environmental Justice (OEJ) established the EJ Small Grants Program in fiscal year (FY) 1994. The purpose of the Small Grants Program is to assist community-based/grassroots organizations and tribal governments that are working on local solutions to local environmental problems.

Accomplishments

In FY 94, the pilot program started with only $500,000 and a limit of $10,000 per award. Each region received $50,000 and funded a total of 61 projects.

In 1995, with additional funds provided by Congress, OEJ increased its small grants program budget to $3,000,000 and increased individual award amounts up to $20,000 each. The Agency awarded grants to over 170 recipients.

In 1996, OEJ awarded $2,800,000 to 152 grant recipients from across the country.

In 1997, OEJ awarded 139 grants totaling $2,700,000. A list of the grants and a brief description can be found on the Internet. The address is:

In 1998, the program continues to focus on awards to community-based organizations (i.e., grassroots groups, churches, or other non-profit organizations) and federally recognized tribal governments that sponsor or plan to carry out projects to address local environmental justice issues. A total of $2,491,500 was awarded. Of this, $491,500 is exclusively for Superfund-related projects. A list of the 1998 recipients will soon be available on the Internet. Visit the Web Site:

Applications will be reviewed by each regional office. Awards will be made on or before September 1, 1999. Refer to the list on the reverse side for the specific addresses for submitting your proposal.

Audit of Program

During 1996 EPA's Inspector General audited the program. Some recommendations for improving the program include: 1) OEJ implementing regularly scheduled conference calls with coordinators to discuss small grant issues only; 2) standardizing the monitoring form and encouraging all regions to use it for each award; and 3) developing a method to monitor each grant, either with onsite visits or by conference call. The biggest weakness was in the monitoring. Most grantees were not contacted after the awards were made. OEJ continues to address these recommendations and revised the Small Grants Program Policy to reflect the recommendations.

The EPA's national Office of Environmental Justice coordinates the small grants program. However, each of the regions has an Environmental Justice (EJ) Coordinator and EJ Grant Coordinator who are your primary contacts for information pertaining to the OEJ Small Grants Program.
